Simple Celebration of Such Home Fete Days "Just Among Ourselves" Will Create Memories That Last Through Life.

By LAURA CLAWSON.

66 | HINK perhaps I remember my mother best on her birthdays." said a famous man not long ago, am sure the memory of those simple festivities will stay with me while life lasts."

"As a family we were very united, and I have often wondered if it were not because we made so much of the family birthdays and holidays, which always, even after we were grown men and women, we kept with some form of simple celebration.

"The effect this custom had on me I will remember; it held for me the idea that no matter how much strangers thought of one, the family, after all, was first. The members really cared about each other enough to remember to provide simple presents on these occasions, and altogether it made for a spirit of unity in our home life which, as I observe the family life of these hurried days, I think was very good for us.

"It seemed so altogether was a strangery was a strangery and altogether was a strangery and so st

"It seemed so altogether wonderful that even mother and father should have birthdays—somehow it brought forty nearer to fourteen!

Simple Present Brought Joy. I recall my mother's joy at some littie bit of jewelry which we children had saved our allowance to purchase for heras one of the sweetest memories for heras one of the sweetest memories of my life.

'I think no costly present we gave her in after life really pleased her as much as that inexpensive pin. I have heard her say so many times."

'I can appreciate now what all these parties, simple as they were, must have meant to mother—how much extra work they entailed on a housekeeper already overburdened. I am ashamed now to realize how we took the seemingly inexhaustible supply of cookies and apples as a matter of course, for in so large a family as ours there was a birthday or anniversary very often."

This interesting glimpse of home life may give others an idea.

Perhaps some mother who reads this who may be thinking of what the last birthday party meant—an elaborate children's party with expensive refreshments. Naturally she will say rather firmly that one or two parties a winter is all she feels able to undertake for the children, the trouble and expense it means in these days precludes any thought of multiplying the events!

Just Among Ourselves. But I am sure my famous man had in mind a far different kind of celebra-

Why not go back to the old way—why not have a birthday party for an older member of the family, father, for instance, and surprise him?

Take the children into the secret and plan with them instead of for them.
Explain that instead of a party with strangers, the birthdays are hereafter going to be family affairs, and that as each ones comes round in turn there is to be a simple celebration "just among surselves?"

The children will enjoy themselves as much, perhaps more than they have been doing at the elaborate parties, and their memories will be enriched beyond expression by these simple family

For after all, the memories of later years of the homes in which we spend our childhood should be more to us than recalling that we had food and shelter there.

In our hurry perhaps we are in danger of forgetting this for our children. The return to these simple birthdays and anniversary occasions may recall it to some of us who have been thoughtless and who are using birthdays merely to repay the social debts which our children are contracting.

When Margaret Mason Explained What Ninon Really Is We Laughed With Glee

Because We Had Thought Paris Was Cheating Us By Sending a New Blouse Material To England First and Deserting Her Steady Patrons, the U.S. A.

Ninon Turned Out To Be Our Aged Friend Chiffon, Which We Haven't Been Using For Aeons and Aeons-And Paris Isn't a Traitor, After All.

ARGARET MASON, our correspondent from Rio, Vigo, and London, tells us of her difficulties in buying a chif-fon blouse in the British capital. With feeling she recounts her adventures and her triumphant return bearng a blouse of ninon.

Her experience has been the means of solving our own curiosity regarding certain advertisements in London weeklies, such as the Sketch and the Sphere. In these waists of ninon were pictured with such indistinguishable photographs to accompany them that it was well-nigh impossible to decide the nature of the mysterious fabric.

America, was our first thought, is being cheated. Paris spreads her cloak before our well-shod feet, sending us her latest conceptions of chiffon and georgette crepe. Here comes London, home of Liberty, but not originality, setting us by the ears with a material that, if our sense of perception has not failed, is indubitably French.

Aside from a few blouses of plaid taffeta-and goodness knows they are with us perennially—the shops are showing the same flesh pink-andwhite creations of georgette and crepe that were seen a year ago. Now, this mustn't be taken too literally. this mustn't be taken too literally. A rich and delicious icing for cake Of course, they are not the same. The which surpasses any boiled icing is made styles are quite a different matter.

Combinations of georgette and washable satin are much favored, and there are few of the pussy willow taffetas featured last winter. Collars grow larger and cuffs more floppy and picturesque. Buttons and beads share honors as trimming—and there is the blouse situation all in one paragraph.

Which surpasses any boiled icing is made as follows: Cream one heaping table-apon butter with one and a half cups pulverized sugar. Add the beaten yolk of one egg and stir until perfectly smooth. Flavor with orange extract or a little orange and lemon juice. It should be stiff enough so that it will spread easily and not drip from the cake.

a serious study of courting, in all its branches.

News does not state whether or not the members intend to take advantage of leap year and learn the art of proposing. It is announced, however, that they will be taught how to receive proposals, how to deal with men of various types, and so on.

Leading up to the course in courting are preliminary studies of self-control and gymnasium! First aid to the injured and present-day literature are also included in the proposed curriculum.

The Chaperon

Dear Chaperon-When a girl wears a young man's fraternity pin, is it considered a sign that she is en-gaged to him? I have a friend with whom I have gone about often, and I've been told that another girl is wearing his fraternity pin. I should like to know if it is the same as an engagement ring. PEGGY.

whom I have gone about often, and I've been told that another girl is wearing his fraternity pin. I should like to know if it is the same as an engagement ring. PEGGY.

THERE was a time when it was taken for granted that if a girl wore a man's fraternity pin she was engaged to him, but times have changed. In those days there were not so many fraternities. There are fraternities in every sort of a school and college now down to the high schools. Usually when a boy gives a girl his fraternity pin, it is simply an admission that he admires her more than any other girl of his present acquaintance, and when she accepts it, it is about the same with her, but it rarely stands for an engagement of marriage.

To wear a fraternity pin is not the same as the wearing of an engagement ring. An engagement ring is accepted everywhere as the sign of, a betrothal. The only way I know of for you to find out if your friend is engaged to the other girl is to ask him.

The Effect of Dissipation

sounds in time becomes almost intolerable.

No matter how slight or how advanced may be your ear affection, it is always best to consult a physician skilled in otology. Never lose time by listening to what Mrs. Brown used, or what Mr. Jones' doctor prescribed for him "for the very same trouble."

Go at once to "headquarters" for the proper person correctly to diagnost your own particular case. This is really the only correct course to pursue.
